Victim In Darfork Shooting Taken To Lexington In Fair Condition

The condition of Lucile White, about 25 who was seriously wounded in a shooting incident at a Darfork tavern Saturday night was listed as fair yesterday as she was being sent to a Lexington hospital from Hazard Appalachian.

But this afternoon Richard Morgan, Combs resident who was also wounded in the shooting, quoted a doctor at the Lexington hospital as saying that Miss White had bullets lodged near her heart and spine and that if she did recover she might never walk again.

The two men suspected of firing the shots are being held in Perry County Jail while the grand jury now in session looks into their case.

Bob Davis, about 30, and Henry Davis, in his 20's, both of Hilton and related as cousins, were apprehended by deputies at Hilton shortly after the shooting occurred just before dark Saturday.

Deputies Jeff Miller and Eli Gilbert said they had to use force to bring the two in after the older Davis reportedly came at Miller with a shotgun. Deputy Miller said that if he had not been close enough to stop Davis with his blackjack he would have been shot.

Four persons in all were wounded in what actually was two shootings, about fifteen minutes apart.

Roy Sizemore of Darfork is still in the hospital after he was hit in the foot by a bullet. Richard Morgan had a bullet to pass through his thigh and Betty Jean Wells of Darfork was hit in the leg, all three by the first volley of fire that Morgan said came from the two Davis men.

Morgan described the incident this way: the two Davis men came into Holman's Tavern at Darfork shortly before the shots were fired and ordered drinks. Since they had already obviously been drinking, they were refused service by tavern owner Charlie Holman, Morgan said.

The two then became belligerent, according to Morgan's story. Bob Davis lay down

Hazard Runner In State Track Meet

Hazard High School's spring sports program is shifting into high gear as the school year is about to end.

This week-end two Hazard athletes journey to the state track meet in Lexington while the golf team goes to Paintsville for the regional golf tourney.

Meanwhile, Hazard's baseball Bulldogs will be readying themselves for the regional baseball playoffs in Middlesboro next weekend.

The big attention during this weekend's schoolboy activity will be focused on Bulldog trackster Jiminy Walker, Hazard High sophomore who has repeatedly cracked the state record in the mile this spring and who last week set a new regional record in that distance event with a sharp time of four minutes, twenty and four seconds.

The present state record in the mile is 4:25.3. Only those times set at the state meet are recognized as official state records.

Walker has his eye on more than one state meet event, however, in the wake of other triumphs at the regional meet at Prestonsburg last week.

He won the 880 yard run and was barely nosed out of a first place finish in the 220 yard dash by the slim margin of a tenth of a second. On the basis of these regional performances, Walker is still in the competition in these events at the state meet.

One other Bulldog thinks, Lindell Purdue, will accompany Walker to Lexington as a second-place finisher in the high hurdles event at the regional meet.

Boy Scout Troop To Assist Library In Book Collection

Local Boy Scout Troop 106 will come to the aid of Bobby Davis Memorial Library Saturday morning as its members scour the town for overdue library books.

Librarian Mrs. Lorraine Reynolds has supplied the Scouts with a list of persons who have failed to return books they borrowed. The Scouts will call on the listed individuals and ask for the library's books.

Mrs. Reynolds said that the fines of two cents per day of overdue time has not been lifted but that it is not necessary for the individuals to pay this money at the time they hand over the books to the scouts.

The library's main interest is in getting back its books, Mrs. Reynolds said. Fines can be paid at the individual's convenience on the honor system.

Mrs. Reynolds also explained that in no case will a fine be charged in excess of the total worth of the book, and that depreciation will be figured in determining what the book is worth.

Mrs. Reynolds said that over fifty books are overdue, some for as long as two years.

EDITORIAL

Trade At Home!

A full-page advertisement sponsored by Hazard merchants and businessmen in today's Herald begins a continuing series of similar ads designed to stress the theme, "It pays to shop at home." The series is being run in the hope that Perry Countians will be reminded of the importance to themselves and to their county of purchasing their consumer goods as close to home as possible.

In a sense, all communities are in constant competition with each other to attract the commerce of the people at large that is necessary to growth and prosperity. For this reason, the towns and cities of the Bluegrass regions of Kentucky are very happy to see our mountains opened up by roads over which it is hoped mountain people will travel to buy in Central Kentucky markets. Hazard and Perry County are involved in a struggle with these outer areas, a struggle of vital importance not only to the businesses most directly affected by the outcome but, ultimately, to every man and woman in the area.

When consumers of a particular community pay their first allegiance to the businesses of that community, they make it possible for the businesses to thrive and thereby be of greater service to the people, in the way of better goods in a wide selection at lower prices. By the same token, a local business that suffers because potential customers go to distant places to buy the things they need is severely handicapped in the kind of service he can provide. His hands become tied until he is often forced to adjust his inventory and the price he has to charge for it, all at the expense of the local buyer.

So a good sound business community is a reciprocal thing. The merchant and the consumer each have responsibilities to the other that, if met, will insure the best advantages for both. As long as we live in Perry County, let's do our trading here too. Let's give first emphasis to our own needs and continue to grow until the new highways that link us to the Bluegrass will work in our own commercial favor, instead of the other way around.

THINGS I PRIZE

These are the things I prize
And hold of deepest worth.
Light of the sapphire skies,
Peace of the silent hills,
Shelter of the forest,
Comfort of the grass,
Shadows of the clouds that quickly pass,
And, after showers, the smell of flowers,
And the deep brown earth;
But best of all, along the way,
Friendship and mirth. —Copied.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR . . .

Appalachia Is Still Worth Saving

Having been born the seventh son of a family of 12 and reared on a hillside dirt farm in the now poverty-stricken mountain section of Eastern Kentucky, I should be the perfect example of the shiftless, moonshining, incestuous hillbilly stereotype referred to in a recent article by Richard Starnes. While I grew up behind a mule with a single-foot plow in my hands, somehow I was rescued by Alice Lloyd College and worked my way to a Master of Arts degree in Education. I even taught my own kind of "ill-used and half-clothed" youngsters for three years in the public schools of the "thunder road" sections of Harlan and Knott counties. All this makes me somewhat of an expert in the newest field of study called Appalachia and Poverty.

While the stereotypes are certainly there, Appalachia is still a country worth saving in a great democracy. Its people and resources are yet rich in heritage and potential. The reason for its shameful situation today is clear to any one who cares to read Harry Caudill's book "Night Comes to the Cumberlands."

The big difference between the storied ghost town and the very real ghost, Appalachia, is that the Appalachian boom was created by a totally outside source which augged in and swallowed up the peaceful and unsuspecting dirt farmer, his home, fish, land, trees, and coal. It suddenly departed, after it had lapped up the cream, leaving the farmer-turned-miner in the residue and in a state of confusion as to his identity. It did not take him with it to another rich strike as in the case of the ghost town out West. The exhausted natives are still there, in a land left raped, but not totally destroyed.

Give them the opportunity they deserve and they will grow. Appalachia needs jobs, dams and watersheds, roads, schools, running water, bathtubs and inside toilets, paint conservation laws, and about 10,000 "Johnny Appleseeds" in the form of a Youth Conservation Corps.

Appalachia has had a bellyfull of free handouts, government commodities, political apathy, welfareism, and government aids designed only to take care of the immediate needs. The Federal and State governments must step in with constructive and long-range rehabilitation programs if this area and its people are to become a symbol of democracy in action. —Simeon Fields.

The Voter Is King

Next Tuesday Perry County voters again have an opportunity to exercise a firsthand influence over the affairs of their state and nation when the polls open for the 1964 primary elections, with a seat in Congress and the Kentucky Court of Appeals at stake.

Because the Primary will only determine the candidates in each party who will oppose each other in the November elections, many voters may tend to disregard the Tuesday vote as unimportant and choose to stay away from the polls. This would be regrettable if it happens. For regardless of how small the issue, the vote each qualified American adult has is too precious a thing to not use at every opportunity. Laziness on election day, any election day, can be habit forming, a breeding ground for the kind of apathy that eventually threatens the structure of the kind of government we now enjoy, in which the individual has a voice.

On election day, the voter is a king, as politicians who seek his favor so well know. The poet John Greenleaf Whittier was speaking of elections such as will occur Tuesday when he wrote:

"The proudest now is but my peer,
The highest not more high;
Today of all the weary year,
A king of men am I.
Today, alike are great and small,
The nameless and the known;
My palace is the people's hall,
The ballot box my throne."

Herald-ings

by Martha M. Nolan

The absence of this column last week may require a brief review. In the first place there was "Mother's Day" and of course a trip had to be made to Hamilton, Ohio to see that best and greatest friend of all—MOM, as well as a group of brothers and sisters!

Then there was the KPA seminar meeting at May Lodge at Jenny Wiley State Park, Prestonsburg which "Hubby" attended. He says he met a number of very fine newspaper men and women, all of course interested in the profession of Journalism. Among the leaders were Victor Portman, secretary of the Kentucky Press Association; George Joplin, President, and editor of the Somerset Commonwealth; S. C. VanCuren of Frankfort State Journal; Norman Allen of Floyd County Times as well as a dozen or more of fine representative communities. There are many and varied problems constantly pursuing the newspaper editors and publishers and it is always interesting to hear the discussions on how to serve the public, via the Press. The climax and one of the highlights of the meeting was a very nice banquet held on Friday evening.

Again on Wednesday of last week we were asked to meet with the Udall delegation representing the Interior Department in Washington. We first met the group at Cumberland, thence to Little Shepherd Trail and to a Cabin on Pine Mountain owned by Mr. Harry Laviers of The South-East Coal Company. Here lunch was prepared and served by a group of ladies to some fifty or more visitors and guests. After lunch the Udall group traveled via Jeep to one of the more remote sections of the county, Pert Creek. There secluded far up in the recesses of the Pine was a one-room school, a very primitive looking one—that had none of the modern day facilities, only one teacher, teaching seven grades. There were approximately 20 students and three dogs in attendance.

Then there was a most interesting tour to a strip and auger mine to witness the actual operation of mining equipment—the very latest.

Also at 7:00 p.m. we had the pleasure of attending a very fine banquet given by Jaycees of Whitesburg, in honor of the Udall visitors. The group was also honored by the presence of Governor Edward T. Breathitt, who was the Principal speaker. Attorney Harry M. Caudill, along with most of the visitors gave brief remarks on happenings and needs for the area. A film on Soil Conservation ended the meeting.

We also attended Eastern Kentucky Development Day at Irvine Wednesday. It was a most interesting day—Bands, parades, folk-dancing, singing, speeches. The principal figures were Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Gov. Breathitt, former Governor Conbs, John Whisman and Highway Commissioner, Ward.

MEMORIAL DAY

Every year, in the full tide of spring, at the height of the symphony of flowers and love and life, there comes a pause, and through the silence we hear the lonely pipe of death. Year after year lovers wandering under the apple boughs and through the clover and deep grass are surprised with sudden tears as they see black-veiled figures stealing through the morning to a soldier's grave. Year after year the comrades of the dead follow, with public honor, procession and commemorative flags and funeral march, thus receiving honor and grief from us who stand almost alone, and have seen many of the best and noblest of our generation pass away.

But grief is not the end of all. I seem to hear the funeral march become a pavan. I see beyond the forest the moving banners of a hidden column. Our dead brothers still live for us, and bid us think of life, not death—of life to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of the spring. As I listen, the great chorus of life and joy begins again, and amid the awful orchestra of seen and unseen powers and destinies of good and evil our trumpets sound once more a note of daring, hope and will. —O. W. Holmes, Jr.

GRASSROOTS OPINION

North Vernon, Ind., Plaindealer: "The brave patriots who founded this country, who dreamt of freedom before there was freedom, saw so very wisely what an important role newspapers could play in the life of this Republic. Because of this, they gave newspapers certain rights and privileges which they felt if exercised would guarantee the continuance on and on of a way of life among the noblest ever conceived by the mind of man."

Roscoe Holcomb's National Folk Music Reputation Unknown In Perry

By Gurney Norman

Perhaps the greatest of several ironies that characterize Roscoe Holcomb of Daisy, Kentucky is that his considerable reputation as a folk singer-musician in places like California, Chicago and New York is virtually unknown here in his home county of Perry.

Recordings and concert appearances since his professional career as a folk musician began in 1959 have brought the music of Roscoe Holcomb to the attention not only of folk music lovers across the country but of leading critics and scholars in the field as well.

Yet, here at home, Holcomb the folk singer is little known. To his friends, he is just "Roscoe," the friendly neighbor who lives in the last house up Hick's Branch behind the old Ritter Lumber Company at Daisy, a man who raises a garden, walks to the post office once a day, and looks hard the year round for work to support his family.

A construction worker by trade, Roscoe has been partially disabled since suffering a broken back in a 1956 accident. With regular jobs in this part of the country extremely scarce for everybody, and particularly hard for an injured man in his early 50's such as Holcomb, he has recently applied for a job on one of the government's unemployed fathers work crews that are active in the county.

It is here that the second of several ironies surrounding Holcomb becomes apparent: in spite of wide-spread critical acclaim and enthusiastic appreciation by connoisseurs of the true folk music, very little financial reward has come Holcomb's way as a result of his music.

His singing and banjo and guitar playing are too authentic, too pure and close to the soil to have any place beside the commercialized "popular" music of the Kingston Trio—Brothers Four variety.

One critic has said of Holcomb: "Holcomb's music contains elements of some of the oldest surviving American traditions . . . His singing is alive and immediate, his drawn voice as clear and piercing as an acid etching . . . Holcomb has already taken his place as one of the most electrifying folk musicians ever recorded."

Another folk music authority and musician in his own right, John Cohen of Folkways Recording Company in New York, has said:

"Roscoe Holcomb is one of the most exciting and beautiful folk singers I have ever heard." But this kind of reputation among the music scholars and critics is, unfortunately, not what attracts the mass audiences enjoyed by the less-talented but more popular folk musicians.

Even Holcomb himself doesn't fully understand just why his music is being taken so seriously by those who see in folk music some thing more than a juke-box money maker. Referring to articles in folk music magazines in which Holcomb is discussed, he says:

"They put stuff in there that I didn't know about my own self." Then, modestly, he adds: "I don't see what they want to haul me around all over the country for, no better than I can play."

Regardless of his own opinion of his abilities, the way his reputation has blossomed in the past few years speaks eloquently of the esteem in which Holcomb is held in the world of honest folk music.

In 1959 he was visited by John Cohen, who came to Perry County to collect on a tape-recorder examples of old-time mountain music.

From these tape-recordings a historic LP record was born, as well as a friendship between Cohen and Holcomb that has led the New Yorker to act as Holcomb's agent and manager in a professional, or at least semi-professional, career.

The record, "Mountain Music of Kentucky," features several native Perry Countians—Martin Young, and Corbett Grigsby, Martha Hall, Lee Sexton among them—singing or playing favorite tunes.

But Holcomb, who contributed six of the selections on the record, is the only one to have gone on to a concert career that two or three times a year takes him to distant states and cities.

His most recent trip was just last month, when he was in Boston, Massachusetts and New York City for two weeks of appearances on college campuses and in clubs.

In February he appeared at folk music festivals at the University of Minnesota and the University of Chicago; a year ago, he spent a month in California, playing in clubs, on campuses and at folk music festivals in Los Angeles, Hollywood and Monterey. He had played in Chicago and New York before on similar festival programs before returning to those cities this year.

Holcomb's music can be heard on two records now in circulation, "Mountain Music of Kentucky" and "The Music of Roscoe Holcomb and Wade Ward." Though he shares these two record labels with other musicians, recording sessions at the Folkways Company in New York last month are expected to result in the issuance of a new all-Roscoe Holcomb record some time this fall.

Holcomb is a versatile performer. His unique style of mountain singing is no less striking than his virtuosity on string instruments, particularly the banjo and guitar. His two-fingered way of string-picking—thumb and forefinger—draws the curiosity and admiration of many students of folk music when he appears before them in question-and-answer sessions on campuses and at music festivals.

Like most mountain musicians, Roscoe never had formal music training.

"I got a book with a banjo I bought once but I just threw it away," he said in a recent interview. "I guess playing is a gift, if it ain't a gift I don't know what it is. Once I quit playing music for ten years, but when I went to playing again, in 30 minutes I could play as well as I ever could."

In spite of years of interest in the banjo and guitar, Roscoe had never owned a quality instrument until 1962. It was then that fellow performers at a music festival in Berkeley, California, chipped in and bought him a fine, expensive guitar as a gesture of their admiration for his performance on the program, an admiration that was shared by a crowd of 8,000 people on the University of California campus.

Between trips to the great cities where his music is known, Holcomb lives quietly with his family at Daisy, in a county where his music is generally not known. Money-wise, he is a long way from the Brother's Four. But considering true talent that produces art of an enduring nature, Holcomb is way ahead of the juke-box crowd. His position is up there in that select company of little-known artists whose work will be as meaningful generations from now as it is today.

Roscoe Holcomb plays the guitar he received as a token of esteem from fellow performers at a University of California folk music festival in 1962.

The Folk Singer At Home

Nationally-known folk musician Roscoe Holcomb travels to distant cities two or three times a year for concert tours, but his home is still at Daisy, Kentucky, where he lives with his wife and two children. He, Mrs. Holcomb and son, Forester, are shown relaxing on the porch steps of their neat, secluded home overlooking Hick's Branch near the Ritter Lumber Company at Daisy.

Perkins Asks For Road Program In Eastern Ky. To End Isolation

Representative Carl D. Perkins called for the elimination of the isolation of Eastern Kentucky by a massive road and public works improvement program in an appearance before the House Public Works Committee Tuesday.

"This means not only a road program that will connect Appalachia to the U. S. but also provide the homes of Appalachia with paved roads," said Perkins.

Perkins was high in his praise for the Administration's recommended Appalachian Mountain program. He said that the program when inaugurated will strike at the sources of unemployment, and lagging economic activities in Eastern Kentucky.

Perkins is one of the cosponsors of the "Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1964" which is being recommended by the President following a report by the President's Appalachian Regional Commission. The bill would authorize a $4.2 billion program for the Eastern Kentucky and Appalachian area over the next five years. $272 million would be expended in the first year which begins this June 30.

Perkins expressed the hope that the Public Works Committee might see fit to broaden the bill so as to make it more effective.

"In this connection, the failure to properly develop and harness the water resources of the area has impeded efforts to improve the economy. Many communities both the Big Sandy, Licking and Kentucky River Basins are constantly posed with the problem of floods which makes investment in commercial enterprises difficult. Flood control and stream dredging and clearing as well as the development of reservoirs for recreation and water supply uses should be greatly accelerated," Perkins said.

Isolation was cited by Perkins as one of the greatest problems of the area.

Not only is communication difficult from community to community within the Appalachian area itself but Eastern Kentucky is isolated from the main stream of America's economic activity because of lack of adequate modern highways, connecting roads, airports and other appropriate modes of communication.

The Appalachian Bill calls for further public works construction such as sewerage treatment facilities and disposal systems.

The bill also authorizes construction funds for Vocational Education facilities to supplement increased funds being made available under the Vocational Education Act of 1963.

Perkins said that the educational program for Eastern Kentucky should stop nothing short of assuring every person who wanted a job a full opportunity to acquire the training and skill necessary to fit him for employment. This means that we must expand our vocational education facilities in every part of the Appalachian area.

Asher Family Loses Social Security Benefits

Many people have lost some valuable social security benefits simply because they did not apply for them—or did not do so at the right time. Such was the case of the Asher family in Leslie County.

Joe Asher filed an application for old-age benefits in 1950. His application was disallowed because he did not have enough work under social security. In 1959, Mr. Asher secured a job as a night watchman for a coal mining operation located near his home. This employment allowed Mr. Asher to obtain quarters of coverage that would enable him to qualify for retirement benefits. But unfortunately, tragedy struck the Asher family for the second time within two years. In 1958, Mrs. Asher passed away, and before Mr. Asher could file an application for benefits he died, leaving four children under the age of 18 without a father or mother to care for them. Three of the children, Ruby Mae, Joe, and Elmer, went to live with an old sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Larkin Combs, of Hazard, Kentucky. Mr. and Mrs. Combs knew about the application filed by Mr. Asher in 1950, thought that since he was disallowed at that time, no benefits could be payable for the surviving children. They failed to contact their social security office when Mr. Asher died in 1959, thereby losing a total of $2,130.00 in monthly benefits, plus a lump-sum death payment of $99.00. However, on the bright side of the picture, the family did receive a check for $630.00 which represents payments for the past 12 months. Under provisions of the Social Security Act, a claim for benefits can be retroactive for as much as 12 months back from the month in which the claim is filed. From now on they will continue to receive monthly payments that will, over the years, total over $8,000 by the time Elmer reaches his eighteenth birthday.

The Asher children, left to right, Ruby Mae, Joe and Elmer, lost a total of $2,130 in Social Security benefits because of failure to contact their social security office when their father died in 1959.

Since all social security records are confidential, Mr. and Mrs. Combs have given the Social Security Administration permission to publicize their story so that others may learn from their experience.

If you have any doubts about your being eligible for social security benefits, you should contact your Social Security Office at 135 Memorial Drive, Hazard, Kentucky.

Vo-Ed For A
Changing World:

Writer Praises George Casebolt, Master Carpenter and Instructor at Vo-School

By: James Farmer Asher

This week's column will be devoted almost exclusively to the Carpenter Shop and Mr. George S. Casebolt, the master carpenter and instructor at the Vo-School.

First I shall tell about Mr. Casebolt. He lives at Mousie, Ky. Mr. Casebolt has had 14 years experience in Carpentry, three years in Carpentry School, five years in Carpentry Union and two years at Vo-School as instructor.

George not only teaches at the school but is eternally doing things for the school. During the time I attended draft class there, he built class-rooms for other classes. If I had my choice of trades, tools.

I think I would choose Carpentry, because it is so beneficial and useful. Almost every one needs to carpenter around the home. You know, the wife is always saying, "Fix this, Fix that".

Mr. Casebolt is also Building Contractor in his spare time, he can certainly build a first class home.

Now about the Carpenter Shop.

The course offered is in building trades. In the course outline a student will learn how to operate and use the following machines: Planer, Jigsaw, Drillpress, table saw, log things for the school. During the time I attended draft class there, he built class-rooms for other classes. If I had my choice of trades, tools.

Also he will learn how to make out a building, mix concrete, build concrete forms, put in floor framing, wall framing, different kinds of roof framing, to use the framing square, to do interior and exterior, finish work. He will learn by doing.

The class work requires about an hour per daily school period. The remaining time is used for work practice.

There are nine students in all but the school has space and facilities for three times this number. The school takes applications between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the office at Walkertown. All ages are welcome so come learn a trade that will assure you a job. There is always a great demand for trained carpenters.

A photograph of the students at work is in this issue of the Hazard Herald. It will probably be on the front page.

I will end today's column with a comment from our Third District Railroad Commissioner, Douglas C. Combs, the depressed economy of former Mayor of Hazard Com-Kentucky.

missioner Combs says: "Vocational Education in the Hazard area is making faster progress than any other school in the state." He adds that he would not be surprised if Hazard should become in the not too distant future the leading Vo-School in Kentucky. He says that he is especially pleased with the new courses in which our older people can enroll; they need something new in their lives to give them some purpose for which to live. It, like a kid starting into Kindergarten for some of them they are learning new trades which will enable them to Third District Railroad Commissioner, Douglas C. Combs, the depressed economy of former Mayor of Hazard Com-Kentucky.

Try it Sometimes.

Coal Production Up 10.35 Per Cent

Coal production in the Hazard area during the week ended last year. Production for the week amounted to 171,670 tons during the corresponding week of the year to date. Production for the week ended May 16, 1964 bringing the year to date indicates a 10.35 per cent increase over the 2,641,520 tons at the same date last year.

In announcing the figures, the Association said the week's Tonnages are computed on the Hazard Coal Operators a 50-ton-per car basis and are production was 10.35 per cent subject to adjustment.

Now if you're saying to yourself "That's a swell looking car, but I couldn't afford it," we'd like a quiet word with you.

That car is a Pontiac Catalina, lowest priced of the big Pontiacs. Catalina has everything that makes a Pontiac a Pontiac—the superlative style, the extra-careful construction, the big-muscled Trophy V-8 performance, the road-wedged Wide-Track ride. Everything. And, the price is very, very right. It must be. After all, you don't get into third place in sales just by selling cars to rich people. Now, how about having a quiet word with your nearest Pontiac dealer. Wide-Track Pontiac

How to be a hit

with the misses

The answer, obviously enough, is to become a 1964 Dart owner. For this young-at-heart beauty is winsome—and then some. Take 1964 Dart styling, for instance. Handsome, dashing, suave, and far from stuffy. Here's a car anyone could love for looks alone. Inside, leather-grained vinyls are every bit as soft and supple as they appear. And how many other compacts can you name that offer a choice of standard or bucket seats, carpeting, and engines ranging from an Economy Run winning Six, to a sizzling, new 273 cu. in. V8.

So, if you want to be a hit with the misses, see your Dodge Dealer. But hurry, there are bound to be many other fellows with the same idea.

Students Help Raise Money For Kennedy Library

Students from Perry county schools will "carry the torch" Sunday afternoon, May 24, in a house-to-house canvass to help raise Kentucky's $150,000 quota for the National John F. Kennedy Memorial Library.

Former Governor Bert nounced Perry county chair Combs, chairman of the Kennedy Memorial Library Foundation of Kentucky, last week an Eversole, Supt. of Hazard City Schools. Mr. Eversole has sent letters to all the teachers asking that the children take the letters to the parents and bring their money to school. The teachers will then issue membership cards to the parents.

Governor Edward T. Breathitt in a proclamation designated May 24 as "Torch Sunday". The theme is from the late president's inaugural address statement, "the torch is passed".

William H. May of Frankfort, foundation president, yesterday expressed his gratitude to the local chairmen, team captains and other workers who are organizing the "Torch Sunday" fund drive in Perry County.

The solicitation will begin at 1:30 p.m., May 24, in every Kentucky community following a torch-lighting ceremony at the State Capitol in Frankfort.

All donors will be enrolled as members of the Kennedy Memorial Library Foundation of Kentucky and their names will be placed in the archives of the Kennedy Library.

The library will be built at a cost of $10 million, raised through public subscriptions, on land donated at Boston by Harvard University. It will be operated by the federal government.

Elect Ann B. Hall To Congress Democratic Primary May, 26, No. One On The Ballot

Ann B. Hall

Ann B. Hall is a qualified candidate. She is a business woman, has served in the Kentucky State Legislature, as a member of the Kentucky State Tax Commission and as an associate commissioner of the State Department of Revenue.

In recognition of her outstanding performance in these and civic and National affairs Ann B. Hall is currently listed in "Who's Who of American Women" and in "Who's Who of the South and South West."

Ann B. Hall will when elected to Congress do the following things for you.

No. 1—Get legislation passed to enable the Widowed Mothers to continue drawing their Social Security checks so long as she remains the widow of her deceased husband.

No. 2—Amend the Social Security laws in two other areas. A—Our present law requires a six months waiting period from the time of declared total disability by your doctor until you can draw disability benefits. (This waiting period actually consists of a four months waiting period and a two months processing period.) I will seek legislation to do away with the four months waiting period and make the two months processing period retroactive. If a man had no other income he and his family could starve to death in a six months period.

B—The work requirement known as the "Twenty-Forty" provision is unfair to those men who have paid into the fund for so long, then if they thro be no fault of their own are not able to meet this work requirement for the last five year period, then he can not qualify under the law for disability benefits and must wait til he is sixty two years of age before he can draw any benefits. Tho another man who never paid into the Social Security fund until five years before he became totally disabled can qualify under the law and draw full benefits. This should be amended to allow any person to draw benefits according to the amount he has paid into the fund.

I will get industry into our district necessary to revitalize our economy.

Kentucky is the only state in the nation where the federal government usurps her taxing authority on her major product thereby making of Kentuckians paupers.

I will introduce a bill whereby the Federal Government can not tax the gross product produced within the boundaries of any state more than 60% of its total value.

When this bill is passed Kentucky would be able to retain 788 million dollars a year of the tax that the federal government has been collecting on whiskey that is produced in our state.

Just think what 788 million dollars a year could do for education, or how many miles of roads we could build with this money to be used for matching federal road funds.

I will explain these and other issues in detail on Channel Three (3) T-V Huntington, Monday, May 25th., at 8:30 p.m. E. S.T.

Be sure to vote for Ann B. Hall for Congress, May 26. She cannot help you unless you first help her.

WHAT PERKINS HAS DONE TO YOU

Can you afford another two years of this?

After sixteen years he has about 80% of all committee flood control in sixteen years cause of his blundering. In my then he could not get it in sixty years.

He voted against parents having a child or children attending college having a $350.00 tax deduction to help educate their children, tho almost in the same breath he voted himself a $10,000.00 a year salary increase.

He has voted for more than 88 Billion of our American tax dollars into the already overflowing Foreign Aid Slushfund.

He has never gotten that first industry into Eastern Kentucky in the sixteen years he has been in Washington.

He has never done one thing to protect the industry we already have. This was proven when Secretary Udall started the import of residual fuel oil that wiped out 4000 jobs of the coal miner. Then in March of this year Secretary Udall increased the import quota of residual fuel oil by another 63000 barrels a year our congressman never said one word in defence of his people, namely The Coal Miner who have in the past supported him. Tho he is in the second top spot on the labor committee and could stop this if he wanted to.

He has never asked congress, either by resolution or by introducing a bill to increase appropriations so that research could be stepped up to protect the health of his people or the tobacco industry. He very well knows that there are many counties in our district that depend on the tobacco industry for their very livelihood.

He was the only man in the south to vote for the public Accomodations Bill as it was introduced in the house. The house version of the public accomodations bill destroyed more Civil Rights than it protects and will coat the tax payers close to a million dollars a year to enforce it. Perkins was the only man in the South to vote for this bill tho he knows that opinion he is the stooge of Adam Clayton Powell, the Negro congressman from Washington.

He voted for Adam Clayton Powells home district in New York, known as Harlem to get 70 million dollars for its so called distreassed area, tho he could not get Powell to vote for or to allow him to vote for the $350.00 tax deduction to help educate our children tho we are called the most illiterate people in the United States.

Tho he is and has been on the Education and Labor committees for sixteen years, these are the two areas where we are most deficient. Under his sixteen year reign we have become a National Scandle. He has hired the highest paid woman in his Washington office from the state of South Dakota, and pays her $10,000.00 a year, bypassing the unemployed, yet qualified people in hsi own congressional district. He voted in the early fifties for the whis key peoples "Reused Cooper age" bill which put the Slave Mill people in eastern Kentucky out of business, these people had been making whiskey barrel staves.

The Spindle Top Research report paid for by the state of Kentucky and published October of 1963 shows that T.V.A. which is federal, used 59.4% Kentucky produced coal. Yet when the contracts were let, Western Kentucky coal fields got contracts for 8.8 million tons in 1962 and Eastern Kentucky Coal fields only got 1.4 million tons. Now just where do you suppose Eastern Kentuckys congressman was when these contracts were being let. This is just typical of a Perkins performance. Always letting his district down.

These are just a few of the things our Congressman has done to us. Listen to my program on Channel Three Huntington T.V. at 8:30 Eastern Standard Time Monday, May 25.
